Stunning Freehold Beachfront Land in Labuan Bajo, Flores

Like so many other places before it, Labuan Bajo on the Indonesian island of Flores is undergoing the metamorphosis from a quiet harbour and fishing town to a bustling tourism destination. Vastly growing numbers of tourists travel to Labuan Bajo in order to hop on a boat and take a trip to Komodo National Park. Indonesia's central government has recognised the potential of the destination and is determined to boost its development. It wants "10 new Balis" to rise until 2020 and Labuan Bajo is supposed to be one of them.

To reach this goal, visitor numbers are targeted to grow to 500,000 which is a fivefold increase within four years. Ayana
